"Make an Impact that Matters" – join us and advise employers and their internationally mobile employees on Swiss and international tax matters. Deploy your curiosity, learn, and continue growing into the trusted advisor for our clients.

The world has changed – and so have the many rules that employers must consider. Our clients need fast, technically sound, and practical advice so they can move forward with their projects. We are involved right from the start and have the chance to support as well with the implementation of solutions, providing end-to-end multidisciplinary support.

You work in international teams with clients from all over the world. We are solution-oriented and offer a flexible working environment that allows hybrid work. Fill your backpack with practical experience and knowledge from all over the world and develop your tax advisory skills every day with us.

How you can make an impact

- You will join our dynamic tax advisory team and will deal with tax advisory projects in a wide range of areas: Swiss and international taxation of cross-border employment structures and planning, equity incentives, pensions, rulings, etc.
- You will have the opportunity to take ownership from day one, to be involved in client-facing activities in projects in the field of individual taxes.
- You can participate and help shape solutions: we advise our clients ad hoc because the general information and easy solutions are already available on the Internet. For this, you do research, write and prepare tailored advice.
- You can learn and apply your technical knowledge directly on interesting cases. You help prepare and deliver presentations to clients and colleagues.
- Combine your strengths and skills with the know-how of our experienced teams – in this power combination you can develop your full professional and personal potential and help our clients in a wide range of individual tax topics.

Who we are looking for

- You hold a bachelor's or master's degree from a university or university of applied sciences in business administration, law or a similar field.
- You are a team player who appreciates the daily contact with clients and colleagues in our network. You like to work independently, efficiently and question the "status quo".
- You enjoy writing, doing research, exploring options and help design solutions. You are eager to learn and willing to develop and would like to benefit from our tax trainings.
- You are outgoing and enjoy helping people solve their challenges and you also have a thirst for knowledge that will bring new perspective to our projects.
- You speak fluently German or French and have very good English skills.

We are looking forward to receiving your application!
